A city is like a living organism with many parts that make up the whole system. At College Hill Learning Garden, we utilize green infrastructures and teach urban stewardship to model sustainability in a living city.

How do you help keep our living city healthy?